

Emma Millington- Staff Governor

I have been teaching for 7 years and have spent 3 of those years here at Southfields. I was also fortunate enough to have been a pupil here and now I am also a parent.

I have taught across both mainstream and special school and have worked with children ranging from early years to KS5. I chose Southfields because of its wonderful reputation in the community. I wanted to be part of the team that gave the children in the community the best chances and opportunities throughout their primary education. It was important to me to work in a school where the children are at the heart of all of the decisions being made.

I have a passion for working with and supporting children that have additional needs and I am always looking for ways to make education more inclusive to all. This includes helping those children who do not have additional needs to communicate with and learn about others who may be different to them. I think this is an important skill for all children to have.

I decided to nominate myself as a school governor two and half years ago so I could become a voice for the staff and share their views with the rest of the governing body. I have really enjoyed this role as it has allowed me to work in all areas of school with pupils and staff that I would not normally get to work with often. I am enjoying learning about how each of the teams in school works and seeing the continuous learning journey of the children in school.

In my spare time I enjoy reading and exploring outdoor spaces with my family where we like to take our dog on long walks. I also enjoy learning about aspects of History especially world war 2. I am interested in exotic animals and at home I have a panther chameleon and a corn snake. I enjoy reading particularly with the children in school when we get to play the parts of the different characters in the book.
